SUMMARY

Having grown up under the poverty level, David fiercely believes in unleashing the potential of all, an approach deeply rooted in equality of opportunity and the economic realities of wealth and human capital creation. He has spent his career helping promote innovation, venture investment, and entrepreneurship worldwide. He believes that by promoting entrepreneurial innovation, we can create jobs, give opportunities to people no matter their circumstances, and transform local and global economies.

David is a Managing Partner of Richmond Global Ventures, a leading international venture capital fund. Richmond invests in global venture opportunities that can scale rapidly, focusing on technologies that create dominant platforms or network effects and which can disrupt markets, with an emphasis on financial technology, adtech, ecommerce, enterprise software/SaaS, data analytics, mobile services, and semiconductor technologies. Of the current Fund's ten investments, four have already achieved "unicorn" status.

David is also the Founder and CEO of Demystifying Silicon Valley, which educates entrepreneurs, investors, and others globally on the best practices to unleash creativity, innovation, entrepreneurship, and development. David has taught over 200 programs to over 7000 entrepreneurs in 22 countries over more than two decades.

David is one of the world's leading experts on international entrepreneurship. As a Silicon Valley based high technology venture capitalist, strategist, entrepreneur, and attorney, David has spent his career working with innovative technology companies, entrepreneurs, and funds, helping them to succeed through the creation and execution of comprehensive international corporate, business, and intellectual property strategies.

In addition to having represented over 300 startups and dozens of venture funds in hundreds of cross-border transactions, David has a real-world operational understanding of the unique business problems of emerging growth companies, having served as an executive of two technology start-ups — one of which he led through a US$128 million investment by GE, NBC, and their affiliates and subsequent IPO before it was acquired by Hughes/DirecTV.

David works extensively with Endeavor Global as a Global Mentor and was a founding Board member of Endeavor Catalyst. David has advised companies and funds globally, including in Brazil, Argentina, Uruguay, Chile, Mexico, South Africa, China, Taiwan, Poland, Jordan, Colombia, Egypt, Russia, India, Belize, Turkey, and Vietnam. He has also advised the governments of Mexico, China, Taiwan, Jordan, Poland, Uruguay, Brazil, Saudi Arabia, and Chile on innovation policy and emerging growth strategies.

David has appeared in many publications discussing innovation and business strategy, including Fortune, The Financial Times, The Red Herring, and The Wall Street Transcript. He is a frequent speaker, including at the Fortune Global Forum in Beijing and the Financial Times Innovation Summit in London. In 2009 and 2010, David was named by Law & Politics and San Francisco magazines as a "Northern California Rising Star."

David has a J.D. from the University of Michigan, cum laude, and an A.B. from Stanford University, with honors, with distinction, where he was a teaching assistant in the Computer Science Department and studied at the Freie Universität Berlin as an exchange scholar.

David has also cashed at the World Series of Poker Main Event, was one of the youngest nationally ranked soccer referees in the United States, captained the national and world championship university quiz team (the latter broadcast on BBC2-TV), won on Jeopardy!, and appeared on Who Wants to Be a Millionaire (where he did not become a millionaire).
